LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE,
BUREAU OF THE CENSUS,
Washington, D. C., December 18, 1913.

SIR:

I have the honor to transmit herewith a report on the benevolent institutions of the United States.

This report contains statistics relating to institutions for the care of children, societies for the protection and care of children, homes for the care of adults or adults and children, hospitals, dispensaries, and institutions for the blind and deaf, showing the name, location, and supervisory agency of each institution for which data was secured and the class of inmates received by each, the movement of institutional population, the number of employees, and certain statistics pertaining to equipment, financial transactions, and property valuations, the whole forming a handbook and directory for use in organized or individual philanthropy as complete as it has been possible to prepare.

The report was prepared by Dr. Edwin M. Bliss, under the supervision of Dr. Joseph A. Hill, expert special agent in charge of the special census on institutions and institutional population. The list of institutions included in the canvass was prepared by Mr. John Koren of Boston, formerly special agent of the Census Bureau.

Very respectfully,

Director of the Census.

Hon. WILLIAM C. REDFIELD,
Secretary of Commerce.

INTRODUCTION.

The Report on Benevolent Institutions is one of a series of reports, issued by the Bureau of the Census, on institutions for the relief and care of the dependent and delinquent classes. The other reports of the series cover almshouses, penal institutions, and institutions for the insane and feeble-minded, while this report includes homes of various types for adults or children, organizations for the protection and care of children, and institutions for the sick or disabled and for the blind and deaf. The institutions covered by the other reports are mostly public in character, while those covered by the present report are chiefly private. In the other reports the emphasis is on the inmates, the information furnished corresponding closely to that provided in the census reports on population; the present report, on the other hand, emphasizes the type of institution, giving in each case its location and describing its purpose, the class of inmates received, and its financial status, and might thus be designated as a directory of benevolent institutions.

PREVIOUS REPORTS.

Apparently the first effort to present a survey of the charities of the United States was made in connection with the Seventh Census taken in 1850. That report showed the number of paupers supported wholly or in part at public expense within the year preceding, and the actual number in institutions on June 1, 1850, together with their nativity, and certain other particulars. It was felt, however, that as this took no notice of those supported or relieved by individual charities, it was not complete, and a special effort was made in 1854 to supply the lack. The returns, however, were unsatisfactory, and were never presented in full.

The Eighth Census (1860) confined itself to a report on the inmates of almshouses.

The Ninth Census (1870) took the same course, on the ground that the "framers of the Census law did not have it in contemplation that the beneficiaries of hospitals, dispensaries, and asylums distinctly for the blind, sick, or insane would be embraced in the returns," enforcing this conclusion by a reference to the eleemosynary character of educational institutions, due to their large endowments, which would necessitate their inclusion in any complete review of benevolences.

The Tenth Census (1880) recognized the very close relations existing between institutions for public and private relief of the poor, but the difficulty connected with a similar enumeration of the inmates of the two classes of institutions resulted in the decision to limit the investigation of private benevolences to institutions for homeless children. The report in regard to these was quite complete, giving the number of "Homeless children in almshouses, in families of outdoor paupers, and in all institutions of a benevolent or beneficent character, including orphan asylums, homes for children, homes for the aged, friendless, etc., also those having no given habitation." These were also classified according to sex, race, and nativity.

The Eleventh Census (1890) placed the statistics of benevolent institutions on the same basis as those for almshouses, prisons, etc., and called for, as nearly as possible, the same information as to their inmates as for the population at large. While the arrangement was by classes of institutions, probably as the most convenient way of securing returns, the results were set forth by characteristics of inmates and the institutional element practically dropped out of sight, the emphasis being upon the inmates.

The classification of institutions was as follows: (1) Those for children, with an occasional adult element; (2) those for adults, with an occasional child element; (3) hospitals and infirmaries; and (4) miscellaneous, such as homes for discharged prisoners and for magdalen, inebriate asylums, etc.

The inmates were classified by sex, age, color, nativity and race, naturalization, legal residence, literacy, education, ability to speak English, marital condition, health (whether in good health, ill, insane, blind, deaf-mutes, idiots, crippled), occupations prior to admission to institutions, and cause of dependence. The classification of children in institutions was further extended to cover the questions of legitimacy, orphanage, abandonment, and institutional births. The statistics were arranged in a great variety of combinations, so as to make the presentation as complete as possible. It appeared, however, that the replies were by no means satisfactory, and although the percentage of error, in the view of the writer of the report, was not such as to invalidate conclusions, it was large enough to raise a question as to the real value of the investigation, in view of the labor and expense involved and the degree of completeness attained.

Under the law governing the Twelfth Census (1900), the enumeration of special classes could not be undertaken until the census of population, vital statistics, agriculture, and manufactures had been completed. By that time the permanent Census Bureau had been established, with authority to conduct these investigations, and the reports on paupers, insane, feeble-minded, prisoners, and inmates of benevolent institutions, were made as for the year 1904. All except the last were conducted along the same lines that had been followed in previous censuses, classifying the inmates by age, sex, nativity, race, etc.

For the report on Benevolent Institutions, however, an entirely different plan was adopted. The regular census enumerators were not available, the appointment of special agents for a large number of small institutions would have involved an expense out of proportion to the value of the results obtained, and it was decided to gather the information by correspondence with the institutions themselves. This method made it especially difficult to secure the type of information set forth in the reports for the Eleventh Census. Comparatively few private institutions keep any records of race, nativity, literacy, etc. In many cases those in charge, while excellent superintendents, matrons, etc., are entirely unfitted for preparing a detailed report as to the inmates, and not infrequently seem to resent a request for such information. The result was that the report became a "Directory of Benevolent Institutions," with merely enough of statistics to give an idea of the size of each particular home or hospital. The items covered included the name and location of the institution; how it was supervised and maintained; the year of establishment; its specific object; the number of inmates at the commencement and close of the year, and the number received during the year; the number of paid employees; the amounts received from public funds and from pay inmates; and the total annual cost of maintenance. In the tables for orphanages and homes there was a classification by sex, and the distinction between adults and children was recognized, but there was no effort to show age periods, so that the term "child" covered the period from infancy to majority, and an adult might be 18 or 70 years of age. Furthermore, the period covered by the financial statement was different from that covered by the record of inmates.

THIRTEENTH CENSUS REPORT (1910).

Period covered by the report.—The law providing for the Thirteenth Census reverted to the original plan and made the institutional census contemporaneous with the decennial census of population. Accordingly the period covered by the present report is the calendar year 1910. It appeared, however, in the case of a number of institutions, that the fiscal or institutional year did not coincide with the calendar year, so that it was exceedingly difficult to secure exact figures for the calendar year. In such cases, reports were accepted for the fiscal or institutional year when it closed in the early half of 1911, which was found to be sufficiently accurate for the purpose of the report.

Scope of the report.—The scope of this report is essentially the same as that of the report for 1904, and is indicated by the classes of institutions included and the nature of the information furnished in regard to them.

Classes of institutions included.—The institutions covered by the investigation may be classified under the following general heads:

- I. Institutions for the care of children.
- II. Societies for the protection and care of children.
- III. Homes for the care of adults, or adults and children.
- IV. Hospitals and sanitariums.
- V. Dispensaries.
- VI. Institutions for the blind and deaf.

Certain changes from the report of 1904 should be noted. Day nurseries, included then with orphanages and children's homes, have been omitted; societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, children's aid societies, and other similar organizations have been brought together as a distinct class; dispensaries, formerly included with hospitals, have been classed by themselves; and the distinction between permanent and temporary homes for adults and children has been dropped and both classes have been united under the head of homes for the care of adults, or adults and children.

This classification, while perhaps the best available, is not completely satisfactory. Many institutions might easily be placed in either of two classes; others have developed quite differently from their avowed purpose; and still others seem to fit into no class. There are founding asylums and children's hospitals which might be included under either Class I or Class IV; homes for incurables, convalescents, and the like which might be included under either Class III or Class IV; societies included under Class II which are practically of the same type as institutions included under Class I.

Confusion arises also from the difficulty of determining the line between adults and children; strictly, all minors are children, yet to include under Class I a rescue home merely because the inmates are under their majority is scarcely fitting. Accordingly, in general, the principal object of an institution has determined the class to which it was assigned.

Another perplexing problem arose in connection with the decision as to what are the distinctive characteristics of a "benevolent institution." The ordinary use of the term is sufficiently clear, even though an exact definition that is also inclusive is scarcely possible. The report for 1890 made no attempt at definition, merely calling attention to some of the inconsistencies in its use. The report for 1904, after stating that an institution was considered benevolent "if supported, wholly or in part, by public taxation, private endowment, or subscriptions, donations, and other forms of gift, for the benefit of the sick, aged, and needy," elaborated exceptions to such an interpretation, until the criteria of admission to the list became more or less indefinite.

In the preparation of the present report the same difficulties were met, and it was deemed best not to follow any rigid rule, but to rely upon the best obtainable testimony and to exercise judgment in each individual case.

In general, it may be stated that the benevolent institutions included in this report are those for the benefit of the sick, the needy, and the dependent, exclusive of those covered by the special reports on paupers, the insane, and the feeble-minded. The great majority are conducted by private persons or corporations both with and without financial assistance, whether from public authorities or private benefaction. Some are charitable in the sense that inmates are cared for free of all charge; others are benevolent rather than charitable, in that they provide succor and relief for persons who are not destitute, but whose means or circumstances are inadequate for the full provision for their need. In most cases the income, from whatever source received, is applied to the purposes of the institution.

Information furnished.—The scope of the information furnished in this report has been determined largely by the fact that, as in 1904, the correspondence method of conducting the canvass was adopted. It was recognized as impracticable to expect the officials in charge of an orphanage, asylum, or hospital to undertake to furnish facts not provided in their own records. Consequently only such questions were asked as would naturally be readily answered by those officers.

The classification by sex has been extended to include all persons under the care of institutions, patients in hospitals or treated in dispensaries, nurses, agents, and other employees; and in the statistics for hospitals children under 15 years are shown separately. The financial reports have been elaborated to include, in addition to the items previously presented, the receipts from donations, the amount of invested funds, and the value of property; and inquiries have been made as to the date of incorporation, if incorporated, the admission of colored persons, the number of beds in hospitals, and the adoption of the cottage plan in the conduct of institutions for the care of children.

Special features.—The most important new feature is the presentation of a new phase of activity involving the enumeration of a distinct class of benevolent organizations. Up to 1904 the care of dependent children, of which a census investigation could legitimately take cognizance, was limited to that exercised in homes where they were resident inmates. The conception of a family home for each child as the ideal solution of the dependent-child problem had only recently become familiar, and comparatively little progress had been made in putting it into practice. The report for that year covered a number of children's aid societies, societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, and similar organizations, but only those which conducted homes with resident inmates. The succeeding years, however, witnessed a remarkable development along these lines. There was a large increase in the number of societies specially organized for the purpose of finding homes for children; institutions, orphanages, and homes added this to their list of activities; and juvenile courts, public officers, almshouses, reformatories, and very nearly every kind of organization or institution that had dealings with children shared in the new impulse. In order to give to this development recognition in the present report, a special classification of "Societies for the protection and care of children" was made, and questions as to the number placed in families were introduced into the schedules for institutions for the care of children.

Another important feature of the report is the classification of the inmates of institutions according to the cause for their admission. In the report for 1904 the institutions were described as for orphan, destitute, homeless, delinquent, or other children; for aged, infirm, disabled, wayward adults; incurables, epileptics, etc. In this report the institutions are described in the same way, but in addition the number of inmates of these different classes is shown, so that a clearer idea of the institution is furnished; and there is a partial basis for a study of the conditions indicated by the facts. For inmates of institutions for the care of children there is a further classification according to the agencies through which they enter the institution.

STATE LEGISLATION AND SUPERVISION.

An important factor in the development of benevolent institutions is the changing attitude of the state toward all classes of dependents, manifest in the organization of systems of supervision of charitable institutions, and the enactment of laws governing the treatment of dependents, especially children and delinquents. Seldom does a year pass without the enactment by some state of elaborate statutes providing for the better care of orphans and dependents, the establishment of juvenile courts, and the placing of all relief institutions under the general supervision, and sometimes the authority, of a state board. One result has been a new emphasis upon the close relation between the different classes of dependents. In many states children are no longer allowed in almshouses, but must be provided for in benevolent institutions; and juvenile delinquents, pending full trial, are cared for in detention homes, classed as benevolent institutions, and when committed by the courts are, except in cases of serious crime, intrusted to benevolent institutions. Furthermore, the poor officers or other authorities charged with looking after the poor in many states are specially instructed to keep in constant communication with private institutions, not merely that private relief may assist public relief, but that the recipients of relief may receive attention which the public institution could scarcely give.

State boards of charities.—Probably the most powerful influence in this direction has been that exerted through the state boards of charities. Under various names and with differing status these exercise a general supervision over the entire field of charity, often adding to it that of correction. They are generally charged with the duty of immediate inspection of institutions with a view to the prevention of abuses and the adoption of the best methods, but in the later and more elaborate codes they are required to make careful study of the entire problem of the care of the "wards of the state." Originally their duties were simply supervisory and the members gave their services for the public good, although necessary office or traveling expenses were paid. Of late it is becoming the custom to recognize them as an integral part of the state government, and the members are salaried and give their entire time to the work. In the latter case the board generally has administrative as well as supervisory authority and is frequently termed a board of control. In many cases, a supervisory board has a salaried secretary who acts as an executive officer. The following list describes the situation in each state:

As will be seen these boards in most cases include under their supervision poorhouses and general poor relief, hospitals for the insane, reformatories, and not infrequently prisons, as well as what are generally regarded as more properly benevolent or charitable institutions, and this increasingly close interrelation of the different branches of their work will have an undoubted effect upon the development of distinctly charitable or benevolent work. That it has already had an influence is certain, though it is not as yet easy to define, and any interpretation of the figures for county homes for dependents in such states as Ohio and Connecticut for rescue homes under the care of Sisters of the Good Shepherd and similar organizations all over the country, and for boards of guardians in Indiana, must take into consideration the increasing influence and activities of organized charity.

GENERAL SUMMARIES OF STATISTICS OF BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

The principal statistics of the benevolent institutions included in this report are summarized in Tables 1 to 16, inclusive. Tables 1 to 3 give the aggregate number of institutions, of inmates at the close of the year, and of persons received during the year; and the total income, expenditure, and value of property, for all classes of institutions; Tables 4 and 5 give a comparative summary of such statistics in this report and in that for 1904, as are fairly comparable; Tables 6 to 11 show the number of institutions, of inmates at the close of the year, and of persons received during the year, in the different classes of institutions; and Tables 12 to 16 present the total income, expenditures, and value of property of these classes of institutions.

INSTITUTIONS, INMATES, AND FINANCES OF INSTITUTIONS.

A general summary of the statistics included in this report is given in Table 3. The first column of the table shows the entire number of institutions given in the general tables. Under each succeeding head is a column giving the number of institutions reporting that particular item, which differs very materially from the number in the first column. This is due to the exclusion from these columns (1) of all institutions which were not in operation during 1910, or on December 31 of that year, and which consequently furnished no statistics, but which, for different reasons, it was deemed wise to include in the general tables; and (2) of those institutions which for any reason made no report of the particular item. This latter condition seems to have been due in some cases to the absence of the necessary records, in others to the fact that the item was not pertinent to the institution. Thus, dispensaries and a number of societies for the protection and care of children made no report of inmates at the close of the year, but did report the number of persons received under their care during the year. In addition, the financial reports of a number of institutions are included in those from other institutions under whose supervision they are operated. This is especially true of dispensaries and of some branch hospitals.

The distribution of these various items by geographic divisions is illustrated by the following table:

DIVISION.	PER CENT OF UNITED STATES TOTAL: 1910.						RANK IN 1910.

The relation borne by the various items to the population in general is illustrated by Table 2, which gives the rate per 100,000 of population for both the number of inmates resident in the institutions at the close of the year and for the number of persons received into the institutions during the year.

COMPARATIVE SUMMARY: 1910 AND 1904.

The differences in plan between the present report and that for 1904 make it difficult to present a fair comparison between the statistics for the two years. Day nurseries, reported in 1904, have been dropped from the list of institutions covered, while societies for the protection and care of children have been added, and though the resulting change in the aggregate number of institutions is not great, the totals for inmates and, to an even greater extent, for persons received during the year are considerably increased. The inclusion, under the head of inmates at the close of the year, of persons not resident in institutions but under their care or protection, and the inclusion, under the head of persons received during the year, of patients treated in dispensaries also materially affect those totals.

COMPARATIVE SUMMARY, BY DIVISIONS AND STATES: 1910 AND 1904.

The financial items, as is explained on page 22, are so different that no attempt is made to present comparative statistics, and Table 4, which gives figures for both 1910 and 1904, is therefore limited to the aggregate number of institutions, the number of inmates at the close of the year, and the number of persons received during the year. Detailed statistics are presented in connection with the different classes of institutions.

Keeping the above-mentioned facts in mind, the following table showing by geographic divisions the increase under the different heads, together with the percentage of increase, makes it evident, in regard both to the institutions and the number of persons under their care, that there has been a marked increase, either in the need of the communities or in the facilities for meeting the need. It is certainly contrary to general observation that there has been any such increase in the need as would be indicated by an increase of 164.6 per cent in the number of persons received into institutions, so that the conclusion seems inevitable that the increased facilities for meeting the need are largely responsible for the increased number of persons relieved.

DISTRIBUTION OF INSTITUTIONS, INMATES, AND PERSONS RECEIVED, BY CLASS OF INSTITUTION.

The entire number of institutions of all classes, including those which for any reason did not furnish statistics, but combining hospitals and dispensaries under the head of institutions for the care of the sick is given in Table 9, while, for purposes of comparison, the following table shows the number of institutions in each class and the per cent which this number represents of the total:

CLASS OF INSTITUTION.	BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS: 1910.

Table 10, which gives a summary, by classes of institutions, of the number of inmates at the close of the year, covers only those actually resident in institutions at the close of the year, and excludes those outside of institutions, though under their care or supervision, and patients treated in dispensaries.

The following table gives the number of inmates in the different classes of institutions, together with the per cent distribution of the total number:

Table 11 gives the number of persons received into the various classes of institutions during the year as resident inmates, excluding patients treated in dispensaries and those taken under their care by societies for the protection and care of children, or by homes for children. The following table gives the number of inmates received in each class of institutions, together with the per cent distribution of the total number received:

In connection with these tables it should be borne in mind that, as will be explained more fully in the text accompanying the descriptive tables on hospitals, page 46, the number both of inmates of hospitals and of persons received into them includes a large number of persons who can not fairly, except perhaps in an indirect way, be considered as recipients of benevolence, being pay inmates who meet all regular charges for treatment and who do not consider themselves as under any special obligations to the hospital authorities. In a somewhat similar manner the inmates of institutions for the blind and deaf are, for the most part, regarded in the same light as pupils in educational institutions which are supported by the state. Keeping these conditions in mind it is noticeable that while the hospitals and dispensaries far outnumber the other classes, forming 46.1 per cent of all the institutions reported, and also report a considerable majority of the number of persons received during the year (66.0 per cent of the

DISTRIBUTION OF FINANCES OF INSTITUTIONS, BY CLASS OF INSTITUTION.

The schedules sent out to the institutions called for financial information as follows: (1) Receipts from state, county, or municipal appropriations, from invested funds, from donations, from care of inmates, and from other sources; (2) expenditures for general running expenses, and for permanent improvements; and (3) value of property at close of year, including land, buildings and apparatus, and invested funds.

Information furnished.—From the returns it became clear that it would be impossible to obtain the desired information, at least in detail. Some institutions evidently did not keep the necessary financial records, others objected to making public their private finances. This latter difficulty was overcome in some instances by including the figures in the summary tables where the identity of the institution was not disclosed and not presenting them in the detailed general tables. It became apparent also that limitations of space for the tables necessitated some consolidation.

Tables 14, 15, and 16, on pages 23, 24, and 25, show, by geographic divisions and states, the income, expenditures, and value of property reported by the different classes of institutions, together with the number of institutions making a report as to each item. In each case the figures cover all the varied sources of income, the different forms of expenditure, and the different classes of property.

The following table shows the distribution of the three main financial items among the different classes of institutions:

CLASS OF INSTITUTION.	RECEIPTS: 1910.		PAYMENTS: 1910.		VALUE OF PROPERTY: 1910.

Dispensaries.....	1,069,613	0.9	1,533,140	1.4	5,720,052	0.9

In similar manner, Table 13 gives the average income, expenditures, and value of property for the different classes.

Significance of figures reported.—The full significance of these figures, of course, depends upon the relative importance of the different classes of income, expenditure, and property, the amount received from pay inmates, from public (federal, state, etc.) appropriations, from invested funds, etc., respectively. This is shown in subsequent tables, pages 73 to 78, and it is sufficient here to call attention to a few items of special significance. The relatively high rank of institutions for the blind and deaf in the financial items, as compared with their rank in number of institutions and of inmates, is due chiefly to the fact that the great majority of them are state institutions, their expenditures being on a scale commensurate with this fact. Hospitals share in the same source of income, although their principal source is the amount received from pay inmates. Their property also includes a large amount of invested funds or endowments. Among the homes for adults and children are the large soldiers' homes conducted by the federal and state governments, which raise the totals and averages for this class of institutions. On the other hand, as already stated, a considerable number of dispensaries own no property apart from the hospitals under whose auspices they are conducted, and frequently their income and expenditures are covered by the hospital statements. A similar situation exists in regard to societies for the protection and care of children.

CLASS OF INSTITUTION.	AVERAGE PER INSTITUTION REPORTING: 1910.
	Receipts.	Payments.	Value of property
All classes.....	$27,652	$26,008	$166,333
Institutions for the care of children.....	19,064	17,278	127,882
Societies for the protection and care of children.....	12,744	12,326	83,051
Homes for adults, or adults and children.....	18,830	18,107	146,855
Hospitals.....	13,446	40,697	216,270
Dispensaries.....	5,942	8,341	48,068
Institutions for blind and deaf.....	50,904	49,673	312,828

The items that enter into these financial statistics are of wider scope than those included in the report for 1904, so that comparison between the two reports is difficult. In 1904 the items called for were "Annual subsidy from public funds," "Receipts from pay inmates," and "Cost of maintenance." As will be set forth in fuller detail in connection with Tables 64-69, pages 73-78, these do not appear to correspond with the items covered by the present report. It was intended to cover the item "Cost of maintenance" by the question calling for expenditures for general running expenses. As a matter of fact, the average "Cost of maintenance" in 1904 was $13,211, while the average total expenditures in 1910, as above, were $26,008, and the average running expenses were $22,220. An average increase of $9,011 per institution in six years seems so unlikely as to render inevitable the conclusion that the elements entering into the two reports were so different as to make comparison impossible. The situation is similar in regard to the receipts from public funds and from pay inmates.

STATISTICS FOR INDIVIDUAL CLASSES OF INSTITUTIONS.

The statistics of benevolent institutions are presented for the different classes of institutions separately in summary and analytical Tables 17 to 49, inclusive.

Tables 17 to 25 give the statistics for institutions for the care of children; Tables 26 to 28, those for societies for the protection and care of children; Tables 29 to 36, those for homes for the care of adults, or adults and children; Tables 37 to 39, those for hospitals and sanitariums; Tables 40 to 42, those for dispensaries; and Tables 43 to 49, those for institutions for the blind and deaf.

Class I.—INSTITUTIONS FOR THE CARE OF CHILDREN.

The institutions covered by this classification are those especially designed for children. They include orphanages, children's homes and asylums, receiving homes for societies for the protection and care of children, detention homes connected with juvenile courts, and similar institutions which receive children as resident inmates, sometimes for a very short period, but do not include day nurseries or homes open for only a part of the year.

CLASSES OF CHILDREN RECEIVED.

The children received are primarily those who are destitute and dependent upon the public for support. Of late years, however, the state has come to recognize its responsibility not only for the material welfare of its children, but also for their protection from evil influences, and in many states under the head of "dependent or neglected children" are included, not merely orphans and children deserted by their parents or guardians, and thus without visible means of support, but also those who live in unfit or disreputable surroundings, who are growing up in the habit of begging or receiving alms, who frequent vicious places, or who in any way give indication of developing into undesirable citizens. Such children, if they actually transgress the law, are amenable to the juvenile courts, wherever such are established, and may be committed to reformatories, or if the offense is slight, to some orphanage or other institution of this class. If there is no infraction of the law, the juvenile court may still take cognizance of the case and commit the child to some benevolent institution, or to the guardianship of some person or persons, with a special view to its being placed in a family home. In many states officers in charge of poor relief are instructed to keep careful watch for such children, and to see that they are provided for in homes for children, or in families, detention in almshouses, except in the case of infants, being forbidden in an increasing number of states. Children's aid societies, humane societies, societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, and similar organizations are also vested with rights of guardianship of dependent children but are expected to direct their energies toward the finding of a home for each one in some family. Individual action along these lines is generally discouraged, and in many states it is illegal for any person or any institution to "place" a child except by authority of the court, of the state board of charities, or of some similar body.

METHODS OF MANAGEMENT.

This development in the general purpose of child care has resulted in the development of different types of institutions and of different methods of management. There are still many orphan asylums of the old type, but there is an increasing number of state detention homes where dependent and delinquent children are cared for pending final disposition by the juvenile courts; of receiving homes under the conduct of home-finding organizations; of state public schools, intermediary between the orphanage and the reformatory; and of training homes and schools of many kinds which frequently are practically educational institutions. The distinction between these classes is not always easily drawn, yet, in general, they stand, as indicating the different efforts to solve the child problem.

The general methods of conducting institutions for the care of children have developed along three lines which deserve special note: The extension of supervisory care by institutions over children placed by them in family homes or elsewhere; the adoption by children's homes of the cottage system; and the assumption by some state authority of supervision over benevolent institutions.

The responsibility of an institution for the well being of a child committed to its guardianship does not cease with its placement in a family home, except in case of legal adoption. In all other cases the institution is expected, and in some states is required, to keep a careful watch of the conditions in the family where the child is placed, with a view to change, should it seem desirable. The result is that to record merely the number of children resident in an institution at a given time does not give an accurate presentation of its work, and a column has been added to the tables showing the number outside of the institutions, but under their care or supervision.

The introduction of the cottage system in the conduct of children's homes is the result of the conviction that the old-time orphanage, with its scores or even hundreds of uniformed children, was not well adapted to the securing of the best results in individual character.

The assumption by state authority of supervision over benevolent institutions has already had notable results in the betterment of conditions in those institutions, in the preparation of new laws, in the inauguration of new methods (including the two already noted), and in the emphasis laid on more complete and accurate reports. While ultimately it will doubtless extend to all classes of institutions, its chief application has hitherto been to those for the care of children, and the Bureau of the Census is under obligations to the various state boards for much of the completeness of the present report.

The information secured by the census canvass in regard to the different institutions for the care of children included in this report, together with their addresses, is shown in detail, by states, on pages 86 to 157. Table 19 gives the principal statistics by states and geographic divisions.

The institutions covered by this table are mostly of the old type, where orphan or dependent children are gathered in a single building under the care of a private association. There are, however, 92 county homes (50 in Ohio, 17 in Indiana, and 7 in Connecticut); 18 state homes, several of these being for the orphans of soldiers or sailors; and 5 municipal homes. There are also 9 detention homes for dependent and delinquent children under the care of the juvenile courts, and a number of receiving homes for societies for the protection and care of children (Class II). The cottage system has been adopted by 168 homes.

The total number of homes reported, 1,151, represents an increase of 76 over the number reported in 1904. The following table arranges the states according to the number of institutions reported in 1910:

The rank of the states, as shown in this table, is determined by varying conditions. The high rank of New York and Pennsylvania is natural, in view of the size and peculiar type of their population; that of Ohio is due chiefly to its system of county homes, which also figures largely in Indiana and Connecticut.

The following statement showing the number of homes in proportion to the population in the different geographic divisions is of interest, especially as indicating the result of the activities of the charitable organizations on the Pacific coast, which place that division in the lead, above even the New England and Middle Atlantic divisions:

COTTAGE SYSTEM.

The following table shows, by states, the average number of inmates per institution and the number of institutions reporting, and the extent to which the cottage system has been adopted; the states are arranged according to the average number of inmates per institution. It is noticeable that the extension of the cottage system has had a close relation to the emphasis laid by the states on county homes and general state supervision. Thus Ohio, with its system of county homes, leads in the adoption of the cottage system, with New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, and California following closely, while Indiana and Connecticut, also with county homes, surpass other states of even greater size.

PLACEMENT IN FAMILIES.

The degree to which the method of placement of children in families has been carried by institutions of this class is illustrated by the accompanying table giving, by states, the number so placed during the year. Detailed statistics as to this phase of work are given in Table 57.

COMPARISON WITH REPORT FOR 1904.

Comparison with the report for 1904 is materially affected by the inclusion in this report, as already noted, of the children outside of institutions but still under their care, whereas the report for 1904 was limited to those resident in the institutions themselves. Thus, of a total of 151,441 children reported by these institutions as under their care, 39,927, or 26.4 per cent, were outside of the institutions. A comparison of the children resident in institutions alone shows an increase over the figures for 1904 of 19,225.

In this connection it should be remembered that the custom of placing children in homes, as already stated, is of comparatively recent origin. Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut had led the way, and by 1904 a considerable number of states had adopted this method of caring for dependent children. Either because the work was poorly organized, or because it was judged that that class of children did not properly come within the scope of the report, there was no effort in 1904 to learn the number of children so provided for. It becomes therefore impossible to make any complete or exact statement as to the relative situation in the two years. In some states, as in Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, and South Dakota, while the total number of children under care of institutions has increased, there has been a decrease in the number resident in the institutions. This would appear to indicate not so much a change in the actual conditions as a change in the efficiency of the methods of meeting those conditions.

That dependency increases with the population is undoubtedly true, but whether or not it increases in the same ratio can not be ascertained without more careful and thorough study than can be given at this time. The next comparative summary presents the facts for the different states.

In accordance with the modern tendency to regard inmates of institutions, or other "wards of the state," as individuals, each with distinctive characteristics, rather than in the mass, an effort has been made to classify the children reported by the institutions into certain broad groups. The results have not been wholly satisfactory. In many cases the superintendents or others in charge of the institutions evidently had no exact records, in others there was apparent uncertainty as to the class in which the particular children should be included. Table 24 presents the results so far as it has been possible to interpret the schedules. The distinction between orphans and half-orphans was made in very few cases, and it was found to be impracticable to separate even the foundlings, so that all these classes are included under one head. The children included under the heading "Newsboys and other working boys or girls" represent for the most part the inmates of several newsboys' homes, but this classification is incomplete because a number of similar institutions are included in Class III (Homes for adults, or adults and children). The majority of the children reported as "Defective or invalids" are cripples in homes for such children. Those classed as delinquent, wayward, or truant are reported chiefly by the detention homes, 45 per cent of the total for this class being reported by an institution in Chicago. In the final column are included all children regarding whose classification the officers of the institutions were in doubt.

Incomplete and unsatisfactory as this table is, it marks an advance in the recognition of the necessity for careful study of conditions, and it is hoped that future reports will show a much better record.

The following table, classifying the children received into institutions according to the agencies through which they were received, is indicative of those agencies rather than exact in its specification of them. The term "Public official" includes municipal, township, county, or state officers; the "Agents of institutions" are the representatives of the institutions themselves. It is manifestly not always easy to distinguish between these different agencies, and the figures given can not be considered complete or exact, but they are of interest, especially those showing the number of children brought to institutions by relatives or friends.

Class II.—SOCIETIES FOR THE PROTECTION AND CARE OF CHILDREN.

The organizations covered by this classification include societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, humane societies, children's aid societies, children's friend societies, and home-finding societies, and, in brief, any organizations which receive children under their care for the special purpose of finding homes for them, and which place them in such homes, by boarding, adoption, or indenture. In the strict sense of the term, these organizations can scarcely be called institutions, yet their work is frequently so thoroughly institutional in character, so closely allied to that carried on by many orphanages, homes, etc., that to omit them from this report would eliminate from it a most important element. It was therefore decided to obtain statistics for societies as a separate class, but to limit the number included to those which actually receive children under their care. A considerable number of such societies, especially of humane societies, confine their efforts to the prosecution, in the courts, of cases of cruelty to children, while some are simply agencies for child-protection, but are not in any sense responsible for the subsequent well-being of the children; all societies of this character are excluded.

INFORMATION FURNISHED.

The facts shown by the tabulation are the number of paid and voluntary agents in service, the number of receiving or temporary homes under the control of the society, the number of families in which children were placed during the year, the number of children so placed, and the number under the care of the society at the close of the year. In addition to these data regarding the organization and work of the society, its receipts, expenditures, and property valuation are shown. The children placed during the year are classified according to their location in families or in institutions, being grouped in each case under the same general heads as the children in institutions of Class I. Those under the care of the society at the close of the year are classified as in the receiving or temporary homes, in families, with or without payment of board, and in custody elsewhere.

The receiving or temporary homes under the care of the societies, together with their inmates, are also included in Class I, which fact should be noted in any consideration of the figures for the total number of children in various classes of institutions. The information obtained in regard to the societies covered, together with their local addresses, is presented in detail, by states, on pages 158 to 173. Table 28 summarizes the more important figures.

From this table it appears that the majority of these societies are found in the Middle Atlantic and East North Central divisions. Among the states Indiana leads with 33, and is followed by New York with 28, Pennsylvania with 25, Ohio with 16, New Jersey with 12, and Massachusetts with 10. Vermont in New England, Georgia, Mississippi, and Louisiana in the South, and Arizona, Nevada, Utah, and Wyoming in the West, reported no organizations of this type.

A noticeable feature of these societies is the extent to which they employ voluntary agencies. Of the 205 organizations enumerated only 163 reported agents, the inference as to the other 42 being that the regular officers of the societies carried on whatever business might be necessary in caring for the children. Those societies which employed agents reported a total of 3,135, of whom 977 were paid, and 2,158 served without compensation. It is noteworthy that voluntary service is practically confined to the eastern states (including the East North Central division), Missouri being the only southern state, and California and Colorado the only western states reporting an appreciable amount of voluntary work. Of the paid agents a majority are women, while of the voluntary agents the overwhelming majority are men.

As already intimated, there are two quite distinct departments of work conducted by these societies: protection of children, through the courts, from cruel treatment or from evil influences; and provision for their care. As this report is necessarily limited to children who come directly under the care of the societies, those organizations which confine their activities to the first-named department are excluded, while for those whose work includes both protection and home finding only the last-named branch is presented in these tables.

The children cared for are tabulated under two heads, "Children placed during the year" and "Children under care of societies at the close of the year." The first head is subdivided so as to show children placed during the year in families and in institutions, respectively; the second shows the number at the close of the year in receiving homes controlled by societies, and those under their supervision in families, other institutions, or elsewhere.

In this connection an explanation of the terms used in these tables in regard to the placing or care of children will assist in interpreting their significance. A child is placed in a family, by assignment by the society, with or without payment of board: by adoption into the family; or by indenture. The term "institution" is applied to an orphanage, children's home, or other home that receives children as inmates; and the institution is usually one that is recognized by the court or by the state board of charities as providing proper care for the child. A child is placed in such an institution when it is committed to its care with approval of the court or state board of charities, or is temporarily intrusted to it by the society, pending further disposition. A receiving home under the control of the society, and in which children are provided for temporarily, is not included under this definition.

The following table gives, by states, the total number of children placed by the societies with families and institutions, respectively:

From this table it appears that New York placed 6,177 children (72.1 per cent of the total reported for that state) in institutions and only 2,389 (27.9 per cent) in families; Massachusetts placed 89.6 per cent in families and only 10.4 per cent in institutions; and Washington placed all but 6 of 536 children in families, while Colorado placed all but 4 out of 368 children in institutions. The explanation of this marked difference between certain states is found chiefly in the type of society that conducts the principal amount of child-placing work in the particular state. In general, societies originally or primarily protective in their character place the majority of children in institutions, while the children's aid societies, home-finding societies, and those of that type place the majority of their children in families. Thus, out of the total number reported from New York 6,046 were reported by 3 societies, the New York and Brooklyn Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and the Mohawk and Hudson Humane Society, all three organizations being primarily protective rather than home finding in their character; in Massachusetts almost all were reported by children's aid societies and similar organizations; while in Colorado, two humane societies, and in Washington a children's home society, were the only ones reported.

As in the case of institutions for the care of children (Class I), so with these societies the assumption by state authority of supervision over benevolent institutions has resulted in requiring child-placing and home-finding societies to continue their guardianship and supervision over children placed by them until it is clear that the right home has been found.

RECEIVING HOMES.

Another development has been the establishment by a number of societies of receiving homes, where children who come under their care, but for whom as yet no appropriate family or institution has been found, may be temporarily placed, or to which they may be returned should the experiment of family placing in any instance prove a failure. Some home-finding societies, instead of establishing such a home, make arrangements with some neighboring orphanage or home, but the tendency is to have separate homes for the care of these children.

The following table gives the distribution by states, of the total number of children reported by such societies as under their care at the close of the year, according to their location in family homes, receiving homes, or elsewhere. This last column covers a great variety of arrangements, some of the children included being in institutions where they are kept tentatively, some in places where they are held on indenture, and some being self-supporting, but still under supervision.

A comparison of this table with the preceding one makes it evident that the societies of some states continue their supervision over children under their care longer than do those of other states.

Thus New York, which placed 8,566 children during the year, reported only 4,971 as under care at the close of the year; but Pennsylvania, which placed 3,106 during the year, reported 7,515 as under care at the close of the year. Similar contrasts occur elsewhere. The explanation is probably that in New York the societies are primarily protective rather than home finding in their character, while in Pennsylvania the children's aid societies are more prominent.

The same contrast appears in the financial reports. Only 165 of the 205 societies made any report of their finances, and only 81 made any report as to the value of property owned. It should, however, be remembered that as the work of the societies in many cases is yet in its infancy, and therefore not fully organized, future reports will undoubtedly show considerable increase along these lines.

Class III.—HOMES FOR THE CARE OF ADULTS, OR ADULTS AND CHILDREN.

The institutions covered by this classification are primarily for adults, and include homes for the permanent care of the aged, infirm, or destitute; for the temporary shelter of the homeless, the unemployed, or wayfarers; for the protection and relief of the unfortunate, wayward, or fallen; and for special classes, as convalescents, incurables, epileptics, and others. Children are received when they accompany their parents or when, for any reason, they can not appropriately be received into the institutions specially for the care of children (Class I), particularly in the case of self-supporting, delinquent, or wayward minors.

In the report for 1904 these institutions were included under two separate classifications, (1) "Permanent homes for adults, or adults and children" and (2) "Temporary homes for adults and children." In the present report, chiefly because of the fact that many institutions seemed to belong sometimes to both classes, all are included in one class, although the distinction between permanent and temporary homes is recognized in some of the analytical tables which follow.

In a general way the institutions of this class are distributed over the country according to the density of the population rather than the area. The geographic divisions, however, show widely divergent ratios between the number of institutions and the population. The ratios for the respective divisions are as follows:

New England.....	One to every 28,740 inhabitants.
Middle Atlantic.....	One to every 43,406 inhabitants.
Pacific.....	One to every 53,067 inhabitants.
East North Central.....	One to every 68,611 inhabitants.
South Atlantic.....	One to every 73,187 inhabitants.
West North Central.....	One to every 92,364 inhabitants.
Mountain.....	One to every 125,495 inhabitants.
East South Central.....	One to every 137,867 inhabitants.
West South Central.....	One to every 159,719 inhabitants.

The information secured in regard to the various institutions of this class, together with their local addresses, is presented by states in the general tables, pages 174 to 267. Table 29 summarizes the principal statistics by states and geographic divisions.

COMPARISON WITH REPORT FOR 1904.

Table 30 gives a comparative summary of the statistics of the institutions in this class, in 1910 and 1904, the figures for 1904 combining the two classes of permanent and temporary homes which are consolidated in this report.

1 A minus sign (-) denotes decrease.

From this table it appears that there has been a total increase of 233 institutions. Five states—Colorado, Florida, Maine, Mississippi, and North Dakota—report a decrease in the number of institutions, and seven—Idaho, Montana, New Hampshire, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, and Wyoming—report the same number as in 1904, while Nevada remains the only state that has no institution of this class. The largest increase reported is in Pennsylvania (36), followed by Illinois (24), New York (21), Ohio (15), Indiana (13), Minnesota (11), and Georgia, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Washington (10 each).

The increase in the total number of inmates reported at the close of the year is 10,416. Eight states—Arizona, California, Kansas, Maine, New Hampshire, Ohio, Virginia, and Wisconsin—show a decrease. The largest increase is reported from New York, followed by Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Minnesota.

The number of inmates at the close of the year and the number of persons received during the year per 100,000 of the total population are shown by geographic divisions in the following table:

It should be borne in mind that the table deals with data that are far from homogeneous either as to class of institutions covered or type of persons included. Among the institutions are federal and state soldiers' homes, Masonic and other fraternal homes, homes for the aged under the care of Catholic sisters or private corporations, municipal lodging houses for transients, associated charities' shelters, rescue homes for wayward or fallen women, shelters for the unemployed, homes for incurables and convalescents, etc. Primarily, all these institutions are supposed to be designed for adults, yet a large number of children are provided for, some with their parents, and some temporarily, because no other suitable homes are open to them, while in many cases persons classed as children because legally minors are to all intents and purposes adults, being independent and self-supporting, and only temporarily in need of relief.

PERMANENT AND TEMPORARY HOMES.

Totals made up of such diverse elements evidently can not be regarded as fully satisfactory, yet the distinction between the two classes of homes (permanent and temporary) is important and is frequently used. Tables 32 and 33 give, with what is believed to be substantial accuracy, the situation in this respect, showing for each class the number of homes, the number of inmates at the close of the year, and the number of persons received during the year. Under the head of "Permanent homes" are included those whose main purpose is to receive persons who have no prospect of ability to care for themselves; under the head of "Temporary homes," those which aim simply to supply relief or shelter for those in immediate or temporary need. The distinction between the two is not always easily drawn, but the classification is sufficiently accurate to bring out a general idea of the conditions.

Numerically and in number of inmates at the close of the year, the permanent institutions exceed the temporary institutions; in the number of persons received during the year, however, the temporary homes far outclass the permanent homes. Both classes are distributed over the country in about the same proportion, the Middle Atlantic division being followed by the East North Central, New England, South Atlantic, West North Central, Pacific, East and West South Central, and Mountain divisions, in the order named, which order coincides closely with that in the ratio of inmates to total population.

As was to be expected, adults outnumbered children—73,177 to 4,873 in the permanent homes and 25,669 to 12,509 in the temporary homes - although it is to be remembered that in the temporary homes the great majority of the children are independent minors classed as children simply because they are under age. Among the adults reported as inmates at the close of the year, males greatly outnumbered females, and the same is true in regard to those received into institutions during the year. Among the children or minors, however, the reverse is true.

PERMANENT HOMES.

A more detailed analysis of these figures is made in the following table, which shows the more important types of permanent homes and their inmates:

From this table it appears that of the 808 permanent homes, 63 are Soldiers' Homes and 74 are fraternal beneficiary homes (Masonic, Odd Fellows, etc.), leaving 671 of a general type. Of the general homes, 42 are conducted by a single central organization, the Little Sisters of the Poor. Of the 78,050 inmates of these 808 permanent homes, 40,200 are in the Soldiers' Homes, 5,701 in the fraternal homes, and 8,362 in the homes of the Little Sisters of the Poor, leaving 23,787, or 30.5 per cent of the total, in all the other classes of homes. The average number of inmates per institution for all the permanent homes is 97; for the Soldiers' Homes, 638; for the fraternal homes, 77; for the homes of the Little Sisters of the Poor, 199; and for the other homes, 38.

It is apparent, then, that if homes that are restricted in their reception of inmates to certain limited classes are eliminated from the number of permanent homes, the balance represents a much smaller amount of relief rendered to adults in general than would appear from the totals. This, is especially noticeable in certain sections of the country. Thus, by excluding the Soldiers' Homes alone, the number of inmates of permanent homes in the East North Central division is reduced from 22,903 to 7,284, and in the West North Central division from 9,521 to 3,384. The same situation affects the statistics as to sex. The total number of adult males reported as inmates of institutions at the close of the year was 59,677. In the Soldiers' Homes there were 40,200, of whom 37,583 were males and 2,617 females (wives or widows of veterans). If these figures are deducted from the respective totals, there remain 22,094 males and 35,232 females. Viewed from the standpoint of the institutions of general character, therefore, the females are in the majority, and while strictly correct, it is misleading to say that more men than women are permanent recipients of public charity. Another significant fact is that in five states—Mississippi, North Dakota, South Dakota, Idaho, and Wyoming—the Soldiers' Homes are the only institutions for adults, while in Oklahoma, of four institutions reported, three are fraternal homes and one a rescue home.

TEMPORARY HOMES.

The temporary homes may be loosely divided into three classes: Shelters for transients, rescue homes for the wayward or fallen, and homes for the friendless providing relief for respectable persons ordinarily self-supporting but temporarily in need. The first class includes municipal lodging houses, Salvation Army industrial homes, immigrant homes, and similar institutions under the care of associated charities or other philanthropic societies; the second class includes the Florence Crittenton Missions, Houses of the Good Shepherd, and similar institutions; and the third takes in all that are not represented in the other two classes, particularly homes for women out of work, homes for working boys and girls, convalescent homes, etc. With regard to the homes for working people, only those are included which, so far as could be learned, are distinctly benevolent in character. Within the past few years a large number of homes have been established by the Young Women's Christian Associations and by private corporations which furnish board to working girls at a lower rate than is usual in boarding houses. As a rule these houses are provided rent free and there is no expense for general superintendence or for interest on investment, and the sums charged the inmates are intended to cover no more than the actual cost of running expenses. In general these homes have not been included, although the mere fact that such a home meets its running expenses by receipts from inmates has not been regarded as the decisive factor.

A better view of the work carried on by these different classes of institutions is obtained from the record of the number of persons received during the year than from the number of inmates at any particular date, and this is set forth in Table 35.

The reports for municipal shelters, immigrant homes, and private shelters for transients were not entirely satisfactory and the statistics presented probably do not represent accurately the full amount of work done by those classes of institutions. In some cases officials of municipal shelters refused information on the ground that the institutions were really a part of the police system rather than conducted for benevolent purposes. The information received from other institutions also proved to be somewhat vague.

There were 15 immigrant homes reported—1 in Maryland, 4 in Massachusetts, and 10 in New York—sheltering in all 45,221 persons. Of the 57 homes or shelters included under this head, 36 homes reporting 572,000 persons received during the year were under private auspices. The Salvation Army industrial homes, being under one central organization, are shown separately.

When estimates are reported to the extent to which they have been by some of these institutions, it is difficult to obtain accurate statistics for sex. As nearly as can be ascertained, however, the following represents the situation with substantial accuracy:

The classification of minors, even up to 18 or 21 years of age, as children renders any satisfactory age grouping even more difficult than that by sex. The total number of children reported as inmates of the institutions was 17,382. Of these, 4,873 were in permanent homes and 12,509 in temporary homes, including 5,954 in rescue homes. Of this entire number only 1,986 were reported as received with parents. There were 2,067 reported as delinquent, leaving 13,294 dependent. In view of the fact that a great majority of the females in rescue homes are under age and may legitimately be classed as delinquents, it is evident that there has been considerable confusion in making the distinction between adults and children and also between dependent and delinquent children.

Class IV.—HOSPITALS AND SANITARIUMS.

The institutions included in this class are those hospitals and sanitariums which may be regarded as benevolent institutions in distinction from those which are conducted on a distinctively business basis.

In regard to no other class has it been so difficult to decide the principle on which selection should be made. Broadly speaking, those hospitals are included which are open to persons who need treatment, but who for any reason are unable to meet the full cost. This has not, however, been the sole basis, for with hospitals, as with physicians, there is a great deal of charity which is nevertheless not of a type to cause the institutions to be classed as benevolent in any such sense as is used in this report. The element of self-support through income from pay patients has entered into consideration, but this has not been a conclusive test, for not infrequently a prosperous hospital with a good balance on its ledger is the one to which the poor or needy may go with greatest assurance of relief and is popularly looked upon as really a benevolent institution.

CLASSES OF INSTITUTIONS INCLUDED.

In general the following classes of hospitals and sanitariums have been included: (1) Public hospitals and sanitariums supported and conducted by federal, state, county, or municipal authorities, except those county hospitals which are connected with pauper asylums; (2) hospitals and sanitariums supported and conducted by ecclesiastical, missionary, or philanthropic organizations; (3) hospitals and sanitariums supported by fraternal or beneficiary associations; (4) hospitals and sanitariums owned and conducted by private corporations, but held under the auspices of some ecclesiastical or benevolent body; and (5) hospitals and sanitariums which are owned and conducted by private corporations, but which receive patients for free or part-pay treatment, of their own motion, on contract with public authorities, or in behalf of some benevolent organization.

It is of course recognized that with hospitals as with educational institutions, the fees charged seldom cover the full value of the service rendered. This, however, must be taken for granted, and it is believed that the list as it stands, if not absolutely complete, fairly represents the benevolent contribution of that class of institutions.

The information obtained concerning the hospitals and sanitariums covered by this report is presented in detail, together with the local addresses of the institutions on pages 268 to 375. Table 38 summarizes the principal statistics by geographic divisions and states.

MEDICAL AND NURSING STAFF.

It is noticeable that only 60 per cent of the hospitals and sanitariums make any report of resident physicians. This is due partly to the failure of a large number to make any full report and partly to the fact that a considerable number, especially of the smaller hospitals, have no resident physicians, but are each under the care of a superintendent or head nurse, medical supervision being given by physicians who were resident in the locality, and who might be and sometimes were designated as visiting physicians. There were, however, a number of cases in which the entire medical fraternity of a town or city were returned as visiting physicians, so that to give a total under that head would be misleading. It will be noted that the average number of resident physicians for each hospital and sanitarium was nearly 5, while according to the report for 1904 the average, if all the hospitals made reports, was only 2.

The number of hospitals maintaining training schools for nurses has increased from 867 to 1,118, representing the same proportion of the entire number of hospitals as in 1904. The average number of nurses per hospital or sanitarium, however, has advanced from 15 to 20.

The number of beds was reported for the first time at the census of 1910, so that comparisons with 1904 can not be made for this item.

PATIENTS REPORTED.

It is noticeable that 202 of the hospitals reported gave no report of the number of inmates at the close of the year. A considerable number of these, especially municipal hospitals for contagious diseases, had no inmates, but in the great majority of cases the lack was evidently due to a failure to make returns. The report for 1904 states that a number of institutions failed to report inmates at the close of the year, but does not give any figures, so that comparison in this respect is scarcely possible. The fact that the number of hospitals reporting the number of persons treated during the year is much larger than that of the hospitals reporting the number of inmates at the close of the year is explained partly by the fact that even those that had no inmates at a given date treated patients at some time during the year, and is also partly due to the fact that while hospitals usually record the incoming and outgoing patients a current daily report is seldom kept.

The returns for the financial items are the least satisfactory of any obtained. Only 79.5 per cent of the total number of hospitals and sanitariums reported gave the amounts received, only 78.6 per cent gave expenditures, and only 73.8 per cent gave the value of property. Some of the federal hospitals did not make any separate reports under the different heads, and in the case of the army post hospitals it was often impracticable to give any valuation to the hospital property as distinct from the other property of the post. In other cases also hospital property seemed to be so involved with other property that a separate statement was impracticable.

The following statement shows the distribution by geographic divisions of the number of hospitals and sanitariums, the number of beds reported, the number of inmates at the close of the year, and the number of patients treated during the year, the averages per hospital also being given for the last three items:

DIVISION.	AVERAGE PER HOSPITAL OR SANITARIUM REPORTING: 1910.			RANK IN 1910 IN—

The ratio between the number of hospitals and sanitariums and the population for the respective geographic divisions was as follows:

Mountain.....	One hospital or sanitarium to every 23,725 inhabitant
New England.....	One hospital or sanitarium to every 28,244 inhabitants
Pacific.....	One hospital or sanitarium to every 36,775 inhabitants.
Middle Atlantic.....	One hospital or sanitarium to every 38,631 inhabitants.

West South Central.....	One hospital or sanitarium to every 125,493 inhabitants.
East South Central.....	One hospital or sanitarium to every 135,641 inhabitants.

The high rank of the Mountain and Pacific divisions is noticeable.

The number of persons treated per 100,000 of the total population, by geographic divisions, was as follows:

DISPENSARIES.

Among the questions asked of each hospital was one as to the operation of a dispensary in connection with the hospital. Whenever the answer was in the affirmative, special inquiry was made to learn (1) whether the dispensary was practically distinct in its operation from the hospital, in which case a separate report was called for; (2) whether it was practically the out-patient department of the hospital, and so identified with it as not to permit of a separate report, in which case the number of persons treated in the dispensary, if given, was put in a footnote; or (3) whether it was really only a pharmacy, in which case it was omitted from the report. In a number of cases it appeared that no exact distinction was made by the hospital between bed-patients and out-patients. So far as possible, especially when the number of persons reported as inmates at the close of the year exceeded the number of beds, special effort was made to learn the exact situation, but not always with satisfactory results. In the main, however, the figures in the general tables and the accompanying summaries for inmates and for persons received during the year refer to bed-patients, the out-patients being reported in connection with the dispensaries.

TREATMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS.

A most important feature of hospital development has been the special attention given to the treatment of tuberculosis. Table 39 shows the number of hospitals and sanitariums and of dispensaries which reported special arrangements for such treatment. The most noticeable single feature is the number of dispensaries in Pennsylvania, most of these being recently established state dispensaries.

Class V.—DISPENSARIES.

In this class are included those institutions, variously termed dispensaries, clinics, or infirmaries, where medical or surgical treatment may be obtained gratuitously or at a nominal price, but which do not receive resident patients. Such institutions are operated either independently or in connection with some hospital or medical college. In the case of those connected with hospitals the dispensary, or clinic as it is usually termed, is practically the out-patient department of the hospital, i. e., the department which treats patients who do not occupy beds in the hospital. Sometimes these clinics are so thoroughly organized and so distinct from the hospital with which they are connected as to be practically separate organizations; on the other hand, they are often so intimately connected, not only occupying the same building, but served by the same medical and nursing staff, that hospital and dispensary are practically one institution.

There are also cases where the dispensary or clinic, as it is often called, is little more than a pharmacy, where patients can obtain medicines on the order of some physician, whether connected with the hospital or not. Dispensaries of this type are not included.

The questions asked covered the number of persons on the medical and nursing staff at the close of the year, the number of treatments given, the number of different persons treated during the year, and the same financial inquiries as for the other classes of institutions covered by the present report.

The returns, so far at least as statistical presentation is concerned, can scarcely be considered as satisfactory. Only about one-third of the dispensaries made any financial report at all. This is due partly to the fact that in the case of many dispensaries identified with hospitals, the financial reports for the hospitals covered the dispensaries also; a notable instance being the case of the Pennsylvania State Dispensaries for treatment of tuberculosis, whose financial statistics are included in the report of a single sanitarium, in the hospital table. In other cases the dispensaries seemed to be on such an informal basis that records of any kind were very incomplete.

In reporting the number on the medical staff at the close of the year there appears to have been no uniform basis adopted by the dispensaries, one institution reporting 245, while in other cases the numbers reported were 183, 174, 121, 80, etc. The majority of these dispensaries were connected with medical colleges, and the students seem to have been registered as attendant physicians.

The greatest difficulty, however, came in connection with the effort to distinguish between treatments given and persons treated. It was impossible, even with repeated correspondence, to obtain satisfactory information on this point. In many cases but one of these two questions was answered—sometimes one, sometimes the other—and not infrequently the same figures were given in answer to both questions. So very unsatisfactory was the result that no column showing “treatments during the year” has been given in the general tables, though such information as the schedules furnished has been included in the summary table. Table 40 presents, by geographic divisions, the total number of persons reported as treated, and the total number of treatments given.

Another difficulty arose from a doubt in some cases as to whether the hospitals reporting always made the distinction between out-patients and bed-patients. Some undoubtedly made this distinction, others apparently did not, but the situation was not sufficiently clear to warrant a distinct statement. In the main, however, as stated in connection with the summary for hospitals, the figures there given are for bed-patients, while those in this table are for out-patients.

Class VI.—INSTITUTIONS FOR THE BLIND AND DEAF.

In this class are included those institutions for the care, education, and training of blind and deaf persons which make special provision for those who are unfitted for or unable to meet the expense of purely educational institutions, whether boarding or day schools. The great majority of these institutions are supported and conducted by the different state governments, and the remainder are mostly under the auspices of benevolent organizations, private or ecclesiastical. Day schools and ordinary boarding schools conducted on a distinctly business basis are not included.

The report for 1904 gave simply the total number of persons received into and resident in the institution, by sex. As will be seen from the following summary, this report gives also the number of adults and children, classifying them as "Blind only," "Deaf only," and "Blind and deaf," and further noting the distinction between the deaf who were able to speak and those who were unable to speak.

Seven states—Arizona, Delaware, Nevada, New Hampshire, Vermont, Washington, and Wyoming, reported no institutions of this class. All these states, however, make provision for the training of blind and deaf residents of the state in such way as the state authorities may judge best. Vermont and New Hampshire send most of those for whom they provide to private institutions in Massachusetts and Connecticut. The western states named frequently make arrangements with state institutions of contiguous states. There is probably no one class of persons for whose education and training such complete provision is made as for the blind and deaf.

The following tables show the number of institutions under state and private management, respectively, together with the number of inmates at the close of the year, the amount expended during the year, and the value of property at the close of the year for each class; also the percentage under these heads. It should be said that a considerable number of the private institutions, including some large ones under the care of the Roman Catholic ecclesiastical bodies, declined to furnish the financial information called for. In one case the value of property is included in the summary tables, though it is not shown in the general tables, where it would be identified with the particular institution.

A review of this table shows that the institutions under private management are almost entirely in the eastern states, chiefly Massachusetts, New York, and Illinois, and that they report a large proportion of the inmates and finances for those states. One institution alone in Massachusetts, the Perkins Institution for the Blind, reported 292 of the 794 inmates, $165,699 of the $378,341 expended, and $3,299,627 of the $4,217,907 reported as the value of property for private institutions in that state, and the situation is similar in regard to some of the institutions in New York City. In the West and South almost the only private institutions are those carried on under the auspices of ecclesiastical bodies.

From these tables the following general facts appear: (1) The number of deaf persons under care and training is more than double the number of those who are blind only; (2) the number of those who are both blind and deaf is so small as to be practically negligible for purposes of percentages or comparison; (3) the deaf persons able to speak outnumber those unable to speak; (4) the children outnumber the adults, forming 63 per cent of the entire number under care, 54.9 per cent of those who were blind only, and 66.9 per cent of those who were deaf only, but including only 13 of the 54 who were both blind and deaf; and (5) of the two classes of deaf persons the children number 73 per cent of those able to speak, and 59.7 per cent of those unable to speak; of the adults, however, 27 per cent only were able to speak and 40.3 per cent were unable to speak.

The geographic distribution depends to a considerable degree upon the emphasis laid on different forms of training by the different states. Some states, as Indiana, give special attention to the industrial training of adults, both blind and deaf, and in those states the percentage of adults is naturally greater.

In general, admission to these institutions is limited, except under special conditions, to those under 21 years of age, which accounts to a considerable degree for the preponderance of children. The distribution by sex of the inmates of institutions for the blind and deaf is given in Tables 48 and 49.

The tables show a notable uniformity. Of the total number of inmates 52.9 per cent were males and 47.1 per cent females; of the blind only, 51 per cent were males and 49 per cent females; for the deaf only, the corresponding percentages were 53.9 and 46.1, respectively. Of those who were both blind and deaf, however, 33 were females and 21 males; but, as already stated, the numbers involved are too small to furnish the basis for any satisfactory conclusions. The geographic distribution follows, with no important exception, the general proportions indicated above.

SPECIAL SUMMARIES.

Under this heading are presented summaries of certain special phases of the statistics of benevolent institutions, together with descriptive text and analytical tables. Persons under the care of institutions and adults and children in institutions at the close of the year, and persons received into institutions during the year are presented by classes of institutions and sex in Tables 50 to 56; Tables 57 to 59 show the statistics of the placement of children in homes and institutions; Tables 60 to 63 give the number of institutions of the different classes and the inmates of these institutions grouped according to the character of the supervisory agency; Tables 64 to 72 present the income of institutions during the year under the head of public appropriations, donations, and receipts from care of inmates; the expenditures during the year for running expenses; the value of land, buildings, etc., and of invested funds at the close of the year; and Tables 73 to 77 give the number of different classes of institutions with the number of inmates under federal, state, county, and municipal care.

SEX AND AGE OF INMATES.

The value of a classification by sex of the persons cared for or relieved by benevolent institutions varies considerably according to the character of the different classes of institutions. There is, for example, little, if any, value in such classification for the inmates of hospitals. Except for the purposes of medical investigation in regard to certain types of disease, whether a general hospital receives more men or women is a fact of little significance, and such medical investigation belongs to a different department of census work. It is of interest, however, to know whether the majority of adults who receive the benefit of general relief are men or women, and whether more boys or girls appear in the records of the dependent classes. So, also, it is of interest to know whether sex is an important factor in the constitution of the transient element in the population of these institutions.

The conditions as to sex have been set forth and discussed in connection with the summaries of the statistics for the different classes of institutions. In Tables 50-53 they are summarized for all classes of institutions. Table 50 gives statistics for all persons under the care of benevolent institutions at the close of the year, Table 51 for persons received into institutions during the year, and Tables 52 and 53 for children and adults in the institutions at the close of the year.

It should be noted that Table 50 includes both resident inmates of institutions, and those outside of institutions but under their care or supervision, while Tables 52 and 53 are confined to those adults and children actually resident in institutions, and Table 51 includes all persons, adults and children, received into institutions, except patients treated in dispensaries and children received by societies under their general care, aside from those received into receiving homes. The sex records for the two classes excluded are in the main incomplete and unsatisfactory; the children received into the receiving homes of societies for the protection and care of children are, however, already accounted for under the head of institutions for the care of children.

The lack of exact classification by age and the indefinite use of the terms "adults" and "children" make any general comparison with the population unsatisfactory. The following statement, however, comparing the sex percentages of the general population with the percentages for the persons included in the tables of the report will be of interest:

CLASS.	Per cent males.	Per cent females.	Males to 100 females.
Total population, 1910.....	51.4	48.6	106.0

Adults in homes for adults, or adults and children.....	61.2	38.7	157.6
Children in institutions for the care of children.....	55.5	44.5	124.8

The dividing lines of age in the two statements are not identical. As already stated, under the head of adults are included a considerable number of females from 18 to 21 years of age and even younger, and probably some males under 21. It is not probable, however, that the percentages would be materially affected were the exact figures available, and the proportions shown may be accepted on the whole as fairly correct. The figures indicate, therefore, that the number of males who for one reason or another are recipients of general benevolence is considerably larger than the corresponding number of females.

It is noticeable, however, that this preponderance of males is more evident in the figures for persons received into institutions during the year than in those for persons under their care at the close of the year, as is shown by the following statement giving the percentages of males and females falling under these two heads for the several classes of institutions, and also the number of males to every 100 females:

CLASS OF INSTITUTION.	PERSONS UNDER CARE AT CLOSE OF THE YEAR: 1910.			PERSONS RECEIVED DURING THE YEAR: 1910.

Institutions for the blind and deaf.....	52.9	47.1	112.3	55.6	44.4	124.8

The exceptionally large percentage of males received into homes for adults or adults and children is due chiefly to the fact that, as stated in a previous section of this report, of the transients provided for in municipal shelters, Salvation Army industrial homes and similar institutions, the overwhelming majority are men. So also the predominance of males in the figures for hospitals is due in large measure to the number of soldiers and sailors treated in the marine and post hospitals. It is also to be remembered that the presence in homes for adults, or adults and children, of a large number of pensioned soldiers and sailors helps to raise the percentage of males for that class of institutions.

PLACEMENT OF CHILDREN.

As already stated, probably the most important feature distinguishing the present report from that for 1904 is its record of placement of children in homes. That work, as conducted by institutions for the care of children, and by societies for the protection and care of children, is set forth in detail for each class of institutions in Tables 19 and 28, pages 28 and 36.

Table 57 gives a general survey of the entire work, as conducted by these two classes of organizations.

Institutions which care for adults are omitted, because except perhaps in individual cases they do not engage in this line of work.

It is to be remembered also that the totals given do not by any means represent the aggregate number of children placed, for no mention is made of the number placed by officials or organizations not included in this report, as officers of the poor, almshouses, reformatories, etc.

Of the entire number of institutions specifically for the care of children, practically all the societies and 45.4 per cent of the homes for children are engaged in this work. Of the total number of children placed by them 72.1 per cent were placed in families and 27.9 per cent in institutions, these latter being placed entirely by the societies for the protection and care of children. Of those placed in families, 51.8 per cent were placed by institutions for the care of children and 48.2 by societies for the protection and care of children, the average for the institutions being 29 and for the societies 71.

The statistics in regard to the sex of the children placed are not fully satisfactory, as a number of organizations (12.9 per cent of the total) made no report on this point. Of the children whose sex was reported 55.8 per cent were boys and 44.2 per cent girls. Of those placed by institutions, the boys and girls were almost equal; of those placed by societies in families, 54.6 per cent were boys and 45.4 per cent girls; and of those placed by societies in institutions, 65.5 per cent were boys and 34.5 per cent girls.

The following comparison of the number of boys and girls reported as placed in families and in institutions is of interest as showing the much greater preponderance of boys among children placed in institutions as compared with those placed in families. Were it possible it would be interesting to know just the type of institutions in which the children were placed.

The distribution by states of the number of organizations engaged in this work is given in Table 59, together with the number of children placed, and the average per organization.

New York is far in the lead in the number of children placed, owing very largely, as explained in connection with Table 26, to the work of three large child-placing societies. Pennsylvania comes next, followed by Massachusetts, Ohio, New Jersey, Indiana, California, Illinois, Iowa, and Michigan. It is noticeable that the largest averages per institution are found in the North Pacific states, due to the fact that the principal effort in each state is made by an organization which has state-wide jurisdiction.

A fact which should be kept in mind in connection with these statistics is that there is a certain amount of replacing of children. If the home selected for a child does not appear to be the best place for it, the society which selected the home is required to remove it and find another home. It is probable, however, that this has not been done to any great extent, at least to such a degree as to affect materially the totals or proportions.

In general it should be said that this class of work is by no means thoroughly organized. There are a considerable number of organizations whose existence as yet is merely formal, and which have not commenced active operations. Even in states which, like Indiana, have an elaborate system of boards of guardians, comparatively few are well established, and some seem to have acquired but a limited conception of the work they are organized to do. Of those that are in operation, many seem to have considerable difficulty in realizing the necessity, or even advisability, of keeping exact and complete records. It is doubtless due to this that so many failed to make any report of sex. In a single state, out of 533 children reported as placed in institutions, the sex was reported for only 69.

In the report for 1904, there was a general classification of institutions as public, private, and ecclesiastical. As stated in that report, "the first group comprised all those directly supervised and maintained by the Federal Government, individual states or civil divisions of the latter; the second, all those managed by private corporations not subject to the control of any general body or organization, though a few establishments maintained by fraternal orders were included; and the third, all institutions directly supervised and supported by religious denominations, orders, or groups of churches."

The present report has adopted the general classification of institutions into public and private, including under the former head institutions operated under federal, state, county, and municipal authority, and under the latter head, other institutions operated under the laws governing private corporations, associations, or individual enterprises.

The private institutions have been subclassified into those under the supervision of Protestant, Roman Catholic, Jewish, and other private organizations, respectively. Under the head of Protestant are included all institutions that are distinctively Protestant in character, as indicated by their title, description, or avowed purpose, whether under the direct control of an ecclesiastical body, or merely affiliated with one. Under the head of Roman Catholic are included both those institutions which are operated directly by the Roman Catholic Church or a religious order of that church, and those conducted by members of some Roman Catholic order and popularly recognized as Roman Catholic, although not owned by the order. Under the head of "Other private institutions" are included all private organizations not specifically belonging under one of the other heads. Among these last are the majority of private hospitals, and homes and hospitals under the control of fraternal or beneficiary organizations.

Dispensaries and societies for the protection and care of children have been omitted from this classification. In many cases it is difficult to decide whether the societies should be regarded as public or private, while the majority of the dispensaries are either identified with hospitals already included in the classification or are of very vague and uncertain type in this respect.

The following tables show the per cent distribution, according to supervising agency, of the institutions and of their inmates:

A comparison of Tables 61 and 62 shows a marked difference in the rank of the different classes of agencies in respect to the number of institutions and of inmates. In total number of institutions "Other" private institutions lead, followed by Protestant, Roman Catholic, Public, and Jewish. In total number of inmates Roman Catholic institutions lead, followed by "Other" Private, Public, Protestant, and Jewish. The public institutions form only 13.7 per cent of the total number, but report 27.2 per cent of the inmates.

Protestant institutions number 19.6 per cent of the total, but report only 11.6 per cent of the inmates; while the Roman Catholic institutions number 18.9 per cent of the total, but report 30.4 per cent of the inmates. Of the total number of adults reported, 37 per cent are in public institutions, 21.8 per cent in Roman Catholic institutions, and 10.4 per cent in Protestant institutions; of the children 15.8 per cent are in public, 13.1 per cent in Protestant, and 40.7 per cent in Roman Catholic institutions.

FINANCES OF INSTITUTIONS.

The general summary of the income, expenditures, and value of property of institutions is given in Tables 12-16 preceding. Tables 64-69 show for each class of institutions the amount of income from public appropriations, from donations, and from care of inmates; the amount disbursed for running expenses; and the value of land, buildings, and equipment owned.

Under the heading "Public appropriations" are included all funds received from federal, state, county, or municipal authorities, whether in the form of regular appropriations or subsidies or of specific grants.

Under the heading "Donations" are included personal gifts, legacies, public collections, receipts from entertainments, appropriations by philanthropic or missionary societies, assessments by fraternal or beneficiary organizations, and other receipts of this type.

Under the heading "Care of inmates" are included all sums paid into the institutions for the care of individuals, whether by the individuals themselves, by friends, or by organizations.

Under the heading "Other sources" in the general tables are grouped all receipts not classified by the institutions themselves, together with those which it was impracticable to include under any one of the other three heads—"Public Appropriations," "Donations," or "Care of inmates." Income from invested funds rentals, interest, proceeds of labor of inmates or sales of products, and loans are some of the receipts so included. In regard to the last-named, it should be stated that wherever the amounts were known, loan transactions have been eliminated. Cash balances were also eliminated from both receipts and payments, wherever it was possible to ascertain the amount of such balances. In general, therefore, the term "Other sources" was of necessity so elastic as to render it inadvisable to present separately the receipts included.

In dealing with expenditures, it was also found difficult to distinguish between "Running expenses" and "Permanent improvements." The cost of a new building, of an annex to an old one, or of a new piece of land could be easily classified, but it became evident, from an examination of the schedules received, that in a number of cases considerable amounts representing costs of improvements had been included under "Running expenses." The statistics, therefore, are not as exact as could be wished. In many cases the total expense only was given, and when further inquiry failed to elicit specific information, it was assumed that the entire amount expended was for "Running expenses." Because of the resulting incompleteness of the returns, no special summary for "Permanent improvements" is given.

With regard to the value of property, certain conditions must be kept in mind. There is no uniform basis for appraisal or estimate of the value of land, buildings, etc. In a number of cases, a hospital, an orphanage, or a home for the aged is only a part of a great institution, and to decide what part of the entire property should be regarded as belonging to the particular benevolent institution under consideration is practically impossible. This is true of a considerable number of the Roman Catholic homes, and of practically all of the United States post hospitals. Another factor to be considered is the difference between original cash cost and present market value, some institutions apparently giving the original cost, others the market value. As far as the requisite data were obtainable the valuation given in this report for properties belonging to an institution represents the equity of the institution in such properties, being the total valuation less such obligations as are secured by mortgages or deeds of trust pledging the properties for the payment of debt obligations. The amounts given under "Invested funds" seem to be limited in some cases to bonds, stocks, etc. In other cases they apparently include the value of investments in real estate whose rentals are reckoned as income.

Another, and possibly even more important, phase of the subject is the evident lack of careful accounting by the institutions. In many cases the figures given on the schedules apparently bore little or no relation to the questions asked, and considerable correspondence was required in order to secure a statement that should fairly represent the situation.

Comparison with report for 1904.—These conditions, combined with apparently different bases of inquiry, make any satisfactory comparison with the report for 1904, as already intimated, difficult and unsatisfactory. That report made no reference to receipts from donations, to value of property, or to expenditures for permanent improvements. It reported "Annual subsidies from public funds," but apparently did not include special appropriations under this head, as is done in the present report. Income from pay inmates also seems to have been limited in the 1904 report to payments by inmates, whereas under the corresponding head in this report are included, not merely direct payments, but receipts for this purpose from relatives or friends, benevolent organizations, etc. That there is a radical difference in the basis of report is evident from a comparison of the averages. According to the report for 1904, the total income from pay inmates for 4,207 institutions was $14,848,508, an average per institution of $3,529. Out of 5,408 institutions covered by the present report, 2,710 reported their total income under this head as $30,320,289, an average per institution of $11,188. Even assuming that in 1904, as in 1910, only half the total number of institutions reported receipts from this source, the average for 1904 would be $7,057, showing an average gain per institution of $4,131, an increase which could scarcely be possible if the statistics in the two reports were on the same basis.

The situation is essentially the same in regard to the amounts given in the two reports for "Running expenses" and "Cost of maintenance," which would seem to be comparable. The total amount reported in 1904 for "Cost of maintenance" was $55,577,633, an

Table 70 gives by classes of institutions the number and per cent distribution of institutions reporting the receipt of income from public appropriations, donations, and care of inmates; Table 71 gives the amounts reported under these heads; and Table 72 gives the average per institution of the receipts under these heads, of the amounts expended for running expenses, and of the value of property in land, buildings, etc.

Certain general facts call for specific reference, these being (1) the large number of institutions receiving public aid and the proportionately still larger amount of aid received; (2) the comparatively small amount actually received for "Care of inmates" (except by hospitals) notwithstanding the considerable percentage of institutions reporting such income; and (3) the large percentage of institutions reporting the receipt of donations, contrasted with the small percentage of the total income formed by this class of receipts.

In general, these facts seem to indicate an increased sense, on the part of the state, of its responsibility for the care of those who are sometimes called "wards of the state." In the past benevolent institutions have been generally regarded as representing the element of personal or private sympathy for individual distress. There appears to be arising, however, a realization that even where distress does not necessarily go so far as pauperism, it involves detriment, if not danger, to the welfare of the community, and that dependents of all classes may properly come within the scope of public supervision and control. This has already been indicated in connection with the statistics for the different classes of benevolent institutions, but it comes out still more clearly in these tables, which show that 35 per cent of the total number of institutions are recipients of public aid, as distinguished from private donations; that 31.8 per cent of the total income of all institutions is from public appropriations, and that the highest average receipts per institution from any source are from such appropriations.

Attention has already been called to the large number of institutions for the blind and deaf which are practically supported by public appropriations, but it is noticeable that 46.3 per cent of the societies for the protection and care of children, 45.6 per cent of the hospitals and sanitariums, and 39.8 per cent of the institutions for the care of children receive public aid. On the other hand, the donations, which ordinarily are regarded as the expression of the benevolence of the community, represented only 16.6 per cent of the total income of the institutions, figuring largely only in the returns for societies for the protection and care of children, and for dispensaries.

The lack of material for comparison in these respects with the situation in 1904 makes it impossible to speak very positively, but there appears to be sufficient basis for the belief that the tendency is toward the placing of all types of benevolent institutions under governmental care, and the gradual elimination of private support and thus of private control.

INSTITUTIONS UNDER GOVERNMENTAL CARE.

The increase since 1904 in the number of benevolent institutions under public, or governmental care, and the even greater increase in the amounts appropriated for their maintenance, is significant of the changing attitude on the part of federal, state, county, and municipal governments toward the dependent classes or "wards of the state."

In 1904 the total number of institutions classed as public was 485; in 1910 it was 636, an increase of 151, or 31.1 per cent. The total amount reported in 1904 as annual subsidies from public funds was $6,089,226; in 1910 the total public appropriations amounted to $37,677,802, an increase of $31,588,576, or 518.8 per cent. As already stated, page 72, it seems probable that some items are included in the present report which were not included in 1904, but with all due allowance for such differences of method, it is evident that there has been a great advance in the amount of aid given to benevolent institutions from public funds.

Tables 74 to 77 show those under federal, state, county, and municipal care, respectively, with the number of inmates at the close of the year classified as adults and children, together with the income and expenditures during the year and the value of property at the close of the year, for all institutions under each form of governmental contract.

It will be noticed that there are only two classes of institutions under federal care—homes for the care of adults, or adults and children, and hospitals and sanitariums. The former are confined chiefly to homes for soldiers, sailors, and marines; the latter include marine, naval, and army post hospitals, and certain institutions for the treatment of soldiers and sailors who suffer from tuberculosis.

Institutions under state care include four classes; institutions for the care of children, homes for adults, or adults and children, hospitals and sanitariums, and institutions for the blind and deaf. Among the institutions for the care of children are a number of soldiers' and sailors' orphans' homes, some state public schools, and a few general homes; the homes for adults, or adults and children are chiefly soldiers' homes; and the hospitals and sanitariums include a number of institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis, and several miners' hospitals, especially in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Institutions under county care are chiefly county homes for children and institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis.

Institutions under municipal care include detention homes for children, municipal lodging houses, and municipal hospitals, the last-named class being chiefly for contagious diseases.

The following table shows the number of federal, state, county, and municipal institutions reported, with the total number of inmates and the average number per institution reported at the close of the year; and the expenditures and value of property, with the averages under each head per institution reporting:

CLASS OF INSTITUTION.	Number of institutions reported.	PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS: 1910.

Municipal.....	177	15,899	90	152	7,956,345	52,344	134	42,646,950	318,261

The relatively low expenditures and high value of property of municipal institutions are due largely to the fact that the municipal hospitals for contagious diseases require a heavy outlay for buildings, etc., but as a rule cost comparatively little for running expenses owing to their infrequent use. The inclusion, among state institutions, of the majority of the institutions for the blind and deaf, raises all the figures in that class, while the soldiers' homes, both state and federal, are all large institutions.

INSTITUTIONS UNDER FEDERAL CARE, BY CLASS OF INSTITUTION, FOR DIVISIONS AND STATES: 1910.

Table 74: INSTITUTIONS UNDER FEDERAL CARE, BY CLASS OF INSTITUTION, FOR DIVISIONS AND STATES: 1910. The table lists various divisions and states, including United States, Geographic Divisions, New England, Middle Atlantic, East North Central, West North Central, South Atlantic, East South Central, West South Central, Mountain, and Pacific. It provides detailed data on inmates at close of year, receipts during the year, payments during the year, and value of property at close of year.
